

Abstract of the Invention

A pouch is provided for an electrochemical cell which does not permit permeation of the solvent vapors of the electrolyte which consists of a film of a polar polymer layer sandwiched between two polyolefin layers. The pouch is a container for primary and secondary batteries and a liner for containers of electrolytes.